

Shawn Johnson Introduction:

Shawn Johnson is a Speaker and Trainer whose passion is working with emerging leaders from younger generations. She uses her many years of experience teaching and coaching millennials to bring understanding to a multi-generational workplace. She has proven strategies that equip business leaders to design a work environment that blends the best of each generation. Her philosophy is “Happy People, Happy Company!”

Shawn is a member of the John Maxwell Team and recipient of the John Maxwell International Certification Scholarship. She is also a Certified DISC Behavioral Analysis Consultant and has completed courses in Positive Psychology.

Her speaking combines real life stories with factual data and proven solutions to establish a high-functioning workplace culture.

Personal Information: (optional)

Shawn has a Bachelor of Science degree in Marketing from the University of Nebraska. She is married to Ronnie Johnson and they have two grown (millennial) children, Kiefer and Chloe. Shawn’s childhood home is in South Dakota, a state she loves during the months of May through September. She is not a native Texan but claims that “she got here as quickly as she could!”